

YANKS ADVANCE ALONG ROAD TOWARD ROME

U. S. Establishes Joint Offensive With Russian Air Force

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

WHILE NOBODY YET has been able to put salt on the tail of D-day, one gets the definite impression that the gigantic Allied forces which are drawn up in battle array on the vital eastern and western sides of Hitler's European fortress are so well set that they could strike at will.

There's an atmosphere of vast power held in leash, pending the arrival of that mysterious moment which the few of the Allied high command have chosen. You get what I mean from events on the Russo-German front in Rumania.

There, in an effort to forestall the coming storm, the Hitlerites have been making furious attacks against a Red line which has held them with contemptuous strength. Up in southeastern Poland—gateway to Germany—the Nazis also have been making anxious explanatory thrusts, only to beat their heads against a similar stone wall.

So it is, too, with the western Allies. The intensive, invasion-type bombing continues apace. Perhaps the American and British air fleets still have considerable spade work to do before the amphibious forces get into action—or perhaps the task is about done. That's not for the public to know. Still, many observers feel confident that the American-British combination can strike at any moment it wants to.

There may be other subsidiary offensives before the eastern and western fronts erupt. The Germans are looking for that. They think these are the Allied invasions in the Balkans. They suspect that French legions from Africa may be flung into the valley of the Rhone in southern France.

Well, both those operations—and others—might be undertaken as preliminaries to the grand assaults of D-day. Hitler is going to be compelled to defend every loophole in his Fortress Europe.

Meantime we have a going and profitable business in Italy. Nazi Field Marshal Kesselring will have to use all his undoubted skill to save himself from the total disaster which grows out of the defeat he already has suffered.

The marshal sustained nasty blows when American forces got astride via Cassinia, thereby cutting the main line of retreat from his southern front, while other Yankee troops thrust through the German line into the Alban hills south of Rome. Loss of the Alban hill defenses would be a catastrophe for him, since he would be cut off from the highways, most of which center in Rome.

Thus much depends on the outcome of Kesselring's efforts to extricate his troops from the Allied trap, he already has suffered heavy casualties, and his losses in equipment have been terrific.

Reappraisal Here Is
Over $17,365,000

Salem's new property valuation, under the reappraisal of real estate just being completed throughout the county by Woodward & Co. of Columbiana, is $17,365,938, an increase of more than a million and a half dollars over the old valuation of $15,713,080.

At the same time the tax rate is being reduced from 17.2 mills to 17 mills, or $17 on each $1,000 valuation, according to figures just released by Vincent Judge, chief deputy county treasurer.

This new rate will produce $295,220.80 in taxes, of which the municipal corporation will receive $97,249.20. The schools will receive $156,293.37, the county $38,205.05 and the township $3,473.18. These figures are based on 100 per cent collection of taxes.

Total is $94,296,280. Reappraisal has been completed in all but three of the 52 taxing districts in the county. In Salem, East Liverpool and Yellow Creek townships, where final checkups are being made by the engineers, the figures given are estimated on complete but not re-checked valuations. The total Columbiana county property valuation is approximately $94,296,280.

The new valuation for East Liverpool is $24,309,910, compared with a previous $22,224,040. Wellsville's valuation jumped about a half-million to $5,761,810; East Palestine's dropped $100,000 to $4,433,470. Other new valuations are:

Columbiana $3,722,020, Lisbon $3,196,100, Leetonia $1,894,950, New Waterford $398,000, Salineville $912,370, Washingtonville $257,000, Hanover $152,340.

Perry Twp. Figure
Perry township $1,792,450, Butler $909,370, Knox $2,895,460, Hanover $1,067,020, Center $610,970, Elkrum $1,233,080, Fairfield $2,681,640, Salem twp.-Leetonia school district, $1,208,030, Salem twp.-Butler school district $342,080, Salem City school district $252,070, Goshen township school district $572,490, West township $2,496,420.

A downward trend is shown in tax rates of all districts. East Liverpool drops from 20.6 to 20.3, New Waterford—with the highest rate in the county—from 23 to 21, East Palestine from 19.5 to 18.1, Wellsville from 18.19 to 17.5.

Attack Rumanian
Targets At Night

LONDON, June 3.—In a new account of the historic shuttle raid to Russia, the Moscow radio today quoted an Izvestia correspondent as reporting that American heavy bombers attacked Rumanian targets at night.

If this account is correct, it is believed to be the first major joint operation ever executed by American planes over Europe.

The broadcast quoted the correspondent as saying: "Today at one of the airbases of the Soviet Ukraine a group of American Flying Fortress bombers landed after bombing military objectives in Rumania."

"The operation they carried out was a night operation."

"Having flown from bases somewhere in Italy, England or North Africa, and from, perhaps all these places simultaneously, these planes after the bombing did not return to their initial bases but landed on Soviet territory."

"American airmen report they raid, the bombing of enemy military objectives in Rumania, was entirely successful. The first American airmen to land on Soviet soil were met by the population and Soviet airmen, their comrades in arms."

The Rumanian radio said early today that "several formations of Anglo-American planes had carried out attacks on the western part of Rumania" but did not specify the targets, or the time of the blows.

Relief Costs Shown

LISBON, June 3.—Columbiana county commissioners' report of relief in the various townships for May show 85 cases and 163 persons, with relief orders amounting to $1,033.48. Butler, Elkrum, Knox, Perry, Wayne and West had no cases or persons reported while Washington had the most with 18 cases. For June there are 80 cases and 153 persons reported.

BEGINNING JUNE 5, McARTOR GREENHOUSE WILL CLOSE AT 6 P. M. . . . SUNDAY AND WEDNESDAY AT 12 NOON.

Two Girls Of '44 Class Get
Alumni Scholarship Awards

Scholarships were awarded to Rachel Keister and Marilyn Elizabeth Wilms of the 1944 graduating class at the 62nd annual banquet of the Salem High School Alumni association last night in the Masonic temple.

Miss Keister, who received the first award of $350, plans to attend Marion college, Marion, Va., to prepare for teaching and missionary work.

Miss Wilms, awarded a $250 scholarship, will take a teaching course at Kent State university.

In announcing the awards, Judge Joel H. Sharp, chairman of the scholarship committee, stated that Betty Jane Gray had been chosen as alternate.

The class of '44 was welcomed into the association by President Ralph Hawley, who served as toastmaster. In his response in behalf of the class, Frank Entenken presented the class gift of $560 to the association.

The acceptance was by H. W. Young of the scholarship committee, who revealed that this was the largest gift since the class of '32. He also announced that the scholarship fund now totals $22,000.

WOMAN SLAIN
IN LIVERPOOLWar Worker Finds Nude
Body of Woman Trussed
Up In Blanket

EAST LIVERPOOL, June 3.—A nude woman's body, still warm when found at 7:30 a. m. today in a clump of weeds along the River road, has police here searching for a murderer who wrapped the body in two Indian blankets and trussed it with strands of clothing.

Charles Winters, 18 year old war worker, stumbled across the dead woman on his way home from work today as he was walking along River road, State Route 7.

Coroner Arnold Devon said the woman, approximately 30 years old, was "undoubtedly murdered" but the actual cause of the death has not been determined.

The coroner said the body showed marks of strangulation, caused by the rope that was wrapped around the neck and the woman's neck. Apparently, police said, the woman was killed at some other place and carried to the clump of weeds by the roadside. Coroner Devon said the murder couldn't have taken place more than an hour and a half or two hours before Winters discovered the body.

Police could find no one in the city who could identify the woman or even state that they had seen her before.

BOMBERS LAND
AFTER SHUTTLE
RAID IN BALKANS

BY EDDY GILMORE

EASTERN COMMAND, U. S. Strategic Air Force. Somewhere in Russia, June 3.—Strong formations of American Flying Fortresses and Mustang fighter escorts have landed at secretly-prepared Rumanian bases in Russia after bombing west-east bombing on Hitler's fortress for the first time and establishing joint offensive operations with the Red Air force.

The historic operation, completed yesterday, was disclosed to be the fruition of a long-range American-Russian-British air plan through which the three powers, in intimate collaboration, brought the most far-flung portions of the Nazi domain under precision bombing.

All indications were that the shuttle bombing was launched from bases in Italy. The Mediterranean air command announced without detail that its planes had participated, but a detailed story of the attack, written by Associated Press Correspondent Joseph Morton at Bari, Italy, was held up by the censors.

A special communique issued by the supreme Allied command in the Mediterranean Saturday morning—several hours after full accounts had come from Russia—said that "a force of Allied strategic bombers and fighters attacked enemy targets in Rumania yesterday and proceeded to Russian bases."

CALAIS AREA
BOMBED ANEWU. S. Heavies Strike Twin
Blows At Coastal Fortifications Today

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, June 3.—U. S. heavy bombers struck twice at Nazi coastal fortifications in the Pas-De-Calais and Boulogne areas of France today, carrying on the non-stop aerial assault of Europe now under intensified pressure after the shuttle raid to Russian bases.

Flying two missions from Britain for the second day, a force of 250 Flying Fortresses and Liberators with equally strong escort hit coastal emplacements in the morning, and similar fleets roared back in the afternoon to the same area.

The west wall fortifications were hit Friday in their heaviest daylight pounding of the war, and 500 RAF bombers attacked the west wall defenses and crumbling German rail facilities last night.

The daylight attacks sent the air offensive into its 16th day.

Today's raiders hurled probably 1,500 tons of explosives on this Atlantic wall section—for a total of about 4,500 tons smashing down in the last 24 hours on this area closest to Britain.

MAJOR BREAKS
MADE IN NAZI
DEFENSE LINEU. S. Troops Fight Way
Through Alban Hills;
Castellaccio Falls

(By Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, June 3.—U. S. troops slugging through the Alban hills toward Rome have captured Monte Castellaccio, 14 miles from the Eternal City, and another American column today drove up the Via Cassinia toward the capital.

Other Allied troops pushed down the highway from Valmontone, one jaw of a potential trap for Nazi rearguards falling back under steady advances by the Allied armies to the southeast.

The power drive that cracked the German's Velletri-Valmontone line swept on to Monte Castellaccio, 6½ miles north of Velletri, and only 14 miles southeast of Rome.

Headquarters cautioned that although Velletri and Valmontone, bastions of the Rome line, have been captured, "the enemy's defensive position in this sector has not yet been broken," that the German defenses are "in considerable depth and firm resistance is being encountered."

Spread Out Offensive
(The German high command reported bitter fighting in the Alban hills Friday, and said attacks at and west of Lanuvio, just west of Velletri, were repelled.)

United States units which took Valmontone struck out in three directions—northwest along the Via Cassinia toward Rome, 20 miles away; southeast along the same road to link up with the French who are driving the Germans out of their last footholds on the south side of the Sacco river, and due north along an important secondary road toward a vital highway junction at Cave, three miles from Valmontone.

The French closed in quickly from the south on Colle Ferro, four and a half miles southeast of Valmontone and within pistol shot of both Highway six and the river.

Farther to the southeast, other French troops closed the retreat route from the area south of the Sacco river by slicing across a secondary road at Sgurgola, 14 miles from Valmontone and five and a half miles west of Ferentino, which the Eighth army already had taken.

Gen. Alphonse Juin's French troops also were driving northward from the village of Montelanico, 11 miles southwest of Valmontone. Montelanico was taken the night of June 1.

ALLIES ACTING TO SAFEGUARD ROME

(By Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, June 3.—The Allied command in Italy pledged every precaution to safeguard Rome in a statement today following Pope Pius XII's plea that the city be spared, but declared its fate lay in the hands of the Germans—that they would be ousted by force if they defended the capital.

(A Berlin broadcast, quoting a foreign office spokesman, declared the Italian capital is free of German armed forces.)

"On the German side everything has been done for months to preserve Rome from such a fate," it declared. "Rome today can be regarded as a city free from armed forces."

Today's Allied pledge expressed hope the enemy "will not make such an ill-considered choice"—to defend Rome. Pope Pius in his appeal declared that "whoever would dare lift a hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide."

The Allies "have only taken and only will take military action against Rome insofar as the Germans use the city, its highways and its roads for their military purposes," the communique said.

THE MAJOR POST-WAR ISSUE

During the war, the nation's chief focus of interest naturally is the conduct of the military campaign and its accompanying responsibilities. But the war will not last forever.

Unless we have grossly over-estimated our strength and the strength of our allies, war will cease to be America's major effort during the next few years. The European phase assuredly will be closed, and the Asiatic phase at least well on the way to conclusion.

Though it is possible the transition from war to peace may be gradual, instead of abrupt as it was after World War I, there will be already are—the same general problems of reconstruction and reorganization. Heavy emphasis on the aspect of those problems abroad, moreover, does not mean the same problems can be ignored here at home. The major post-war issue for Americans will not be, contrary to the claims of internationalists, the reconstruction of the world, but the reorganization of our own country as a major power in the world. We cannot afford to take ourselves for granted; to exert the influence which the United States has earned, this nation must recognize the necessity of rehabilitating itself as well as the nations which may choose to follow an American pattern of life.

Growing realization of this fact is the source of the realistic attitude which internationalists, intolerant of anything but their peculiar brand of global thinking, are inclined to sneer at as isolationism. It is not that at all, in the sense they imply; it is a balanced viewpoint. It puts first things first and subordinate things in their place. It recognizes that the United States cannot impose its policies on anyone; that its strength lies mainly in the power of example.

It is a viewpoint balanced not only as to international attitude, but also in domestic affairs. Here again, critics try to smear it with a catch phrase, dismissing it as a revival of states' rights thinking. But here again, it is more than that. It is a revival of a sense of political balance.

Where it has occurred, as notably in the middle west and the Central Atlantic states, it has created the circumstances which have made Gov. Bricker of Ohio find a sympathetic hearing for his balanced viewpoint on post-war financial needs for America—strict economy in government, equitable division of tax bases to preserve revenue for state and local governments and tax relief. Gov. Bricker does not neglect America's post-war international responsibilities, but he does not give them precedence over the infinitely greater responsibility of rehabilitating state and local government as the ultimate source of this nation's strength.

"The more the history of the republic is written at the crossroads and the less at the capitol, the freer we shall be," he told the governor's conference at Hershey, Pa. "When local responsibility is destroyed, citizenship atrophies and dies. But when state and local governments flourish, when men and women practice representative government and exercise home rule, the foundations of the republic are secure."

CROWDS ON THE DOVER CLIFFS

Passage of Allied bombing fleets to and from target areas on the continent are watched daily by crowds on the Dover cliffs. When bombs are being dropped on the invasion coast along the English channel, communiques mention, the flashes of the explosions and their thunderous echoes make a grand spectacle.

Here is another reminder of the historic settings in which so much of the war is being fought. Like the plains of Libya, the steppes of Russia, the Alban hills and the road to Rome, the cliffs of Dover have figured in momentous battles for centuries.

In 1217 crowds on the cliffs saw the fleet organized by Eustace the Monk destroyed by the navy of the Cinque Ports, one of which was the port of Dover. In World War I, Dover crowds watched Britain's life-and-death struggle to keep the channel open against German submarines—saw them, at first, patrolling boldly on the surface, then saw them forced to submerge and finally overcome by development of mine fields laid from Dover to Grimsby on the French coast.

On invasion day in this war, crowds on the Dover cliff, it may be imagined, will see one of the great battles of all time. It will be fought on the water, in the air and on the land within their range of vision. Dover, itself, being a great port, will be virtually important; it lies within range of German artillery. In all probability, many of the first stories of invasion action will be written by men privileged to stand at one of the world's finest vantage points for recording the passage of history.

GERMAN RETREAT

The Allies in Italy have advanced within sight of Rome. But it is now evident that their advance may be less important in the final appraisal of the Italian campaign than the German retreat.

The strategy of the retreat is not yet clear. But it has the obvious effect of shortening supply lines which Allied air power had made difficult to maintain and the probable effect of releasing military manpower from the Italian front.

When the Russian armies were advancing, Allied comment usually took into account the fact that the advance was expedited by the German retreat. That is, the Germans were not being destroyed; they were saving themselves. It is equally proper to acknowledge that in Italy, the success of our armies has been brought about in large part by the apparent plan of the Germans to retreat before them.

It is good discretion not to make too much of any man at the first, because one cannot hold out in that proportion.—Bacon.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, June 4.

SUNDAY'S horoscope indicates a rather complicated state of affairs, with promise of much joy and pleasure, success and achievement, but the auspicious conditions may be nullified by various forms of extravagance, self indulgence, wild and dubious conduct. There may be temptations in connection with writings, documents or agreements, which may be distorted or manipulated toward unworthy ends. Personal extravagances and excesses also may menace.

Those whose birthday it is may have a difficult and dangerous year, with perplexities and problems largely resulting from selfish, extravagant and unprincipled indulgences. Particularly are writings and documents liable to be distorted, twisted or made to serve expediency rather than principle. Similar excesses and recklessness in private life may jeopardize happiness.

A child born on this day may be so self-centered and careless of its honor, integrity and prudence as to need strict supervision in its infancy.

For Monday, June 5.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a complex one, with much promise of settling the affairs on a firm and enduring basis, largely through shrewd, sturdy and determined methods based on good sound sense. Tactful and diplomatic handling of critical affairs, with diligence and proper approach, should be able to set aside dangerous, irregular and difficult situations. Excess and extravagance, with irregularity in writings and contracts may threaten. Romance and social or emotional associations may likewise be subject to adverse circumstances.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which difficulties and irregularities may be complicated by careless, dubious and involved factors. Straightforwardness, sound judgment, diligence and sterling worth may set in order tricky or doubtful circumstances. Even romance and affectional ties may be imperiled by hasty, careless or irregular conduct, extravagances and indulgences.

A child born on this day may have many sound and sterling qualities although in instances may be rash, careless, extravagant and may invite trouble with papers or writings. It should have careful early training.

The ideal society would enable every man and woman to develop along their individual lines, and not attempt to force all into one mold, however admirable.—J. B. S. Haldane.

We are more sociable, and get on better with people by the heart than the intellect.—Bruyere.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Machine Diagnosis Has Limitations

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"If YOU CAN'T tell the cause of a headache, a heartache or a bellyache, without the use of an encephalogram, an electrocardiogram and a fluoroscope you are slipping," Dr. Marton Fischer, of Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Cincinnati, told some of his fellow medical practitioners. Yes, this is machine age in medicine as anywhere else. And machines are perfectly accurate. They tell the facts within the limitations of their powers. Only many devotees of machines don't recognize their limitations.

The electrocardiograph machine will tell about a person who has a heartache or whose heart is skipping around much. When they get through using it they put a canvas hood over it and leave it in the technician's office and go out and close the door. The machine doesn't know what the fellow with the skipping heart and heartache does Saturday night, or what the letters in his pocket say, or just where his son in the armed forces is stationed.

Limitations of Machines

My old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, and I were sitting side by side listening to a very learned lecture by a very scientific person about a very complicated case. "And what would you do next?" asked the speaker, with dramatic emphasis. "Look for the bottle of opium in the bureau drawer," muttered Dr. Gibbs, who has had a good deal of experience with human nature. The machine cannot look in a bureau drawer.

The present situation creates conditions that are naturally reflected in the heart. All the proverbs remind us of that. What we don't remember is that anxiety doesn't result always in just a sad heart. It may spill over into symptoms that resemble real disease. You can call it angina pectoris if you want to and the machine may say angina pectoris, but it is heartache that is the same and the cause is not the coronary circulation, but a son or husband or brother out on the firing line at Anzio or New Guinea.

I spoke last week of the palpitation of the heart, the skipped beats and irregularities that are caused by emotion.

There is still another set of symptoms that are mistaken for real organic heart disease and those have to do with shortness of breath and difficult breathing. Everybody knows that difficult or labored breathing, dyspnea, as the doctors call it, is a sign of heart disease. Fundamentally it is due to the need of the tissue cells for oxygen.

Shortness of Breath

The athlete after a race is breathing in a labored fashion because the effort of the race has caused his muscles to use up an extra amount of oxygen and to accumulate a lot of carbon dioxide. His heart, being strong he is soon adjusted to a state of compensation. The weak heart muscle of the heart patient causes the same condition as exertion does in the case of the athlete, so he is short of breath at rest.

A great many people, however, in these emotional times find themselves with sighing respiration and since this imitates the labored breathing of heart disease they conclude they are in that class. This has long been known as functional, or nervous, dyspnea. It can easily be distinguished by any doctor, if he takes the trouble to examine the heart of such a person. In fact it can be distinguished by the character of the breathing. The commonest sensation is that the breath doesn't get to the bottom of the lungs. The breathing is not exactly labored—there is a sighing and a panting type. It isn't present all the time, but comes in spells. You can put it down not to heart disease but to the difficult conditions of our time.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Comedy is the basic theme for an hour's special broadcast on NBC at 8 Sunday night in salute to the armed forces, the second this year. Under Bob Hope as M.C. there will be Edgar Bergen and Charlie Burns and Allen, Gracie Fields and Bing Crosby, as well as Judy Garland and Ray Noble's orchestra.

As of June 1 Young Men of 17 May again join the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve

ENLISTMENT in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve is once more open to qualified young Americans . . . who want to win their wings on the "greatest team in the world"—an AAF air combat crew.

In April, thanks to the air-mindedness of America's youth, the AAF's personnel program was well ahead of schedule. More than enough men were in training, and in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, to meet scheduled quotas for combat crews. At the same time, the need for men in other branches of the army was urgent. Therefore, opportunities to join the AAF—including the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve—were suspended.

As the Commanding General pointed out, the suspension of enlistments in the Reserve was intended only as a temporary measure. Accordingly, effective June 1, enlistments have again been opened in the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve in order to insure a sufficient number of qualified individuals for training this fall.

The AAF is a Team

Today, the AAF is the largest, most powerful air force in the world. Fighting side by side with the planes of our Navy and our Allies, it has won control of the air in every theatre—and has carried the war to the military and industrial hearts of Germany and Japan. It is daring the enemy to "come up and fight." Yet its losses have been less than anyone had anticipated or even dared to hope.

That all this has been accomplished is due, in large measure, to the fact that the AAF air combat crew is more than just planes and men. The combat crew is a team . . . the greatest fighting team the world has ever seen . . . with Gunners, Bombardiers, Navigators and Pilots flying and fighting together, to win.

And any young man who wants AAF wings should keep this ideal of teamwork uppermost in his mind. It is the key to AAF successes in battle. It will be the key to his own success in the AAF.

If you want to fly with the AAF, you may apply at any AAF Examining Board for enrollment in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. Upon passing the preliminary qualifying physical and mental tests, you will become a member of the U. S. Army Air Forces—on inactive duty. This means that you will not be called for training until you have reached your 18th birthday. If you are at work you may remain on the job until you are 18. If you are in high school, you may elect to finish the semester you are in when you become 18. If you are a high school graduate, not over 17 years and 9 months, you may elect to take advantage of the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, which provides free college training for men approaching military age.

When called, you will first be given "basic" training. During this period, you will take "aptitude" tests to determine whether you will be classified for training as Gunner, Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot.

Your Place on the AAF Team

If you have an outstandingly high aptitude rating for a particular position, you may be given an opportunity to compete for the classification that you prefer. But it is important to remember that all jobs on the AAF team are vitally important . . . that air combat crews not only are chosen from the very cream of the nation's young men, but that each seat in every plane must be filled by the man best qualified to fill it.

Gunners go into actual combat as non-commissioned officers. In addition to being the world's best aerial marksmen, gunners may qualify as trained technicians—in radio, armament or airplane mechanics. Pilots, Navigators, and Bombardiers are graduated from training as 2nd Lieutenants or Flight Officers.

Your job, and your rank, in the AAF will depend upon your own demonstrated abilities. For full information as to qualifying for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, see your nearest AAF Examining Board or local Army Recruiting Station.

For Pre-Aviation Training

Whether or not you have yet reached 17, you can begin now to prepare yourself to qualify for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. See your local Civil Air Patrol officers about C.A.P. Cadet Training . . . also see your High School principal or adviser about recommended courses in the Air Service Division of the High School Victory Corps. Both offer excellent pre-aviation training . . . and help point the way to AAF wings.

Verla Cobbs, Wendell Santee Wed In Rites At Damascus

Before an altar banked with ferns, white snapdragons and peonies and lighted by white tapers in seven-branch candelabra, Miss Verla Lucille Cobbs became the bride of Wendell Santee of Damascus in a candlelight ceremony in the Damascus Friends church at 8 p. m. Friday.

Rev. A. N. Henry, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Iren T. Cobbs of R. D., Beloit, was given in marriage by her father.

Preceding the ceremony a program of music was played by Mrs. Kenneth Phillips, sister of the groom. Numbers included: "Liebes Traume," "Indian Love Call" and "Song of Love." Mrs. Phillips played the accompaniment for vocal numbers, "I Love You Truly," "Because" and "At Dawning" by Kenneth Phillips. "The Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" (Wagner) and "The Wedding March" (Mendelssohn) were played for the ceremony. The bride wore a white taffeta gown, fashioned with a long train, fitted bodice with sweetheart neckline and long fitted sleeves. Her full-length veil of net was arranged in a beaded tiara. She wore a strand of pearls and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and white feverfew.

Miss Dorothy Steer, maid of honor, wore a long, full-skirted frock of American rose taffeta, with fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. She carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses and white snapdragons and wore a tiara of Talisman roses in her hair.

Miss Charlotte Shreve and Mrs. Lea Hoopes served as bridesmaids, wearing poude blue taffeta frocks. They carried arm bouquets of Better Times roses and wore garlands of the same flowers in their hair. Attendants wore gold lockets.

Kenneth Headland of Salem served as best man for the groom and ushers were Kenneth Santee, brother of the groom, and Lester Sloop, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Cobbs, mother of the bride, wore a two-piece light blue crepe dress with white accessories, and Mrs. Santee, mother of the groom, was in blue and black accessories. They wore corsages of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for 50 relatives and friends. The table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom. Lighted white tapers and white floral arrangements completed the appointments.

The couple left for a short wedding trip following the reception. The bride wore a melon-color suit with white accessories and corsage of white roses.

Mrs. Santee has been employed for the last two years at the Grindley Artwork Co. in Sebring.

The groom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Santee of Damascus, is a graduate of Goshen Township High school and attended Marion college at Marion, Ind. He is employed by the Deming Co. here.

The couple will make their home in Damascus.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN
"I don't think it has any bearing on the—on Syria's death," Dorry said. "And I don't like to air family quarrels."

"I don't blame you," observed Ellen.

"So there was a quarrel. Between whom?" Argus asked.

"Bill and his father. I couldn't help overhearing it. I was in the living room and Bill was in his father's library with the door open. I couldn't make out much of what was said but I heard his father accuse Bill of taking the check. Later I tried to ask Bill about it, but he wouldn't tell me anything."

"When did this quarrel take place?"

"Last week, Wednesday or Thursday, I don't remember."

"Did Cynthia Lane know about the check? Was that why she was trying to get to Carstairs Sr. through you?" Argus asked.

"In a way. Mr. Carstairs is interested in politics. Cynthia didn't know about the check but she did know about Syria and my father-in-law. She wanted me to make Bill give her some money to keep quiet about his father. She mentioned something about some letters. Bill had told me that she had already approached him and he had told her to go to the devil—so I did too."

"Does your father-in-law know about this?"

"No. I haven't told him."

"It must be tough on you," Ellen said sympathetically.

"Where was Bill between five and six-thirty on Monday?" Argus queried.

"Why, I don't know," answered Dorry. "He came home around seven and we went to the Penguin Club."

"And how about yesterday afternoon?"

"I don't know, Mr. Steele."

Argus got up. "I think I'll wake up that husband of yours and ask him a few questions." He walked over to the couch. Roughly he shook Carstairs' shoulder. The boy grunted.

"Let me do it, please," Dorry pleaded. She knelt down beside the divan and took his head in her arms. She spoke to him and coaxed him in a low voice.

Carstairs opened on bleary eye. "Where am I?" he asked.

"Darling, wake up! It's Dorry. Darling—"

"What-what—" he sat up and shook his head.

"How do you feel?" Dorry asked.

Bill made a wry face, then he saw Argus. He focused his eyes with difficulty. "Say, aren't you the guy I met at the Penguin Club?"

"I'm surprised you remember it," Argus said.

"This is Mr. Steele's apartment, dear," Dorry told him.

"How did I get here?"

"Feet first," said Ellen. "You were in a bar and they were about to throw you out. I got them to parole you in my custody and brought you here."

Carstairs seemed to consider this as he took a proffered drink in trembling hands, spilling part of the whiskey.

"Where were you yesterday afternoon around five?" Argus asked casually.

"Yesterday?" Carstairs looked blank. "What day was it?"

"Tuesday."

"Tuesday—I dunno."

"How about Monday at six?"

"What is this?" Bill asked. "And what day is today, did you say?"

"Wednesday," Ellen supplied.

"You phoned Syria Verne from the Penguin Club on Monday night," Argus tried again. "Did you reach her?"

"Line—was—busy," Bill hiccupped.

"Did you know that Syria Verne was murdered on Monday night?" the detective asked.

Bill's eyes clouded. "I heard about it," he said.

Argus held up the cancelled check so that Carstairs could read it. "You dropped this," he said.

"Gimme that!" said Bill, making an unsteady lunge.

"Not until you've answered some questions and maybe not then," Argus sternly declared. "The police would undoubtedly be delighted to lay hands on this little piece of evidence."

"That's my check," Bill interjected. "Besides, what business is it of yours?"

"None," said Argus, "if it didn't so happen that Syria Verne was once a friend of mine. I'm interested in anything that might have a connection with her death. You were known to have been interested in Syria—you were calling her on the night of the murder—you disappear for two days and I happen to know that you had a row over this check, with your father. Yesterday another model was shot during a fashion show—one who knew too much about you and your family affairs."

"Dorry," Bill turned to his wife. "What have you been telling this guy?" He looked haggard.

"Nothing. He—he said he'd tell the police if I didn't answer his questions."

"Blackmail!" snapped Bill. "How much do you want?"

"I want answers to my questions. Why were you phoning Syria on Monday night?"

"None of your business."

"Were you sore because she seemed to prefer your father to you?"

"Why, you—" Bill clenched his fists and glared at the detective. Then he turned to Dorry. "C'mon and get your things. We're getting out of here, now." He swayed as he stood up. There was an ugly sneer on his face. "I've got a lawyer, Steele. You can talk to him."

"I'll bet you keep him pretty busy, too," Argus commented.

"Dit he have a hat and coat?" Dorry asked Ellen.

"Not when I found him."

Bill staggered toward the door, running his hands through his disheveled hair. "C'mon," he urged Dorry impatiently.

"I'm coming," she turned to Argus. "Are you going to tell the police about all this?"

Argus nodded. "Yes. I'm afraid your boy friend doesn't leave me much alternative."

"I'll see what I can do with him, when he's feeling better. Mr. Steele please give me until tomorrow morning. And thanks for taking care of him, Ellen."

Bill was standing in the doorway. He mumbled to Dorry as they went out: "I'll get that check and Steele, too, if I have to—"

"Shhh, darling!" Dorry admonished as the door closed.

"Now," said Argus, mopping his forehead, "it's back to work I go, and I hope without any interruptions."

Ellen's comment was almost a whisper.

"Are you going to give Dorry until tomorrow before you tell the police about that check?"

"Sure," Argus lifted his coat off the air-conditioner.
"But suppose Carstairs Sr. did it. I mean he might get away."
"Not a chance," declared Argus. Grange is watching him like a hawk."

The detective was in the act of picking up a screwdriver when the doorbell rang.

"It's a frameup," he growled. "I'll never get this confounded thing finished." Resignedly he went to the door.

"Good evening," grinned Grange from the threshold.

"Come in, Inspector," Argus took his coat and hat. Grange followed him into the living room. He looked curiously at the tools on the floor and the air-conditioning machine.

"What are you doing, trying to duplicate the machine you were telling me about that killed Syria?"

"Yes," said Argus. "Ellen, meet Inspector Grange—Miss Curtis."

"I've heard of you, too, Miss Curtis."

Grange took out a little black notebook from his pocket. "I have some information for you, Steele."

"What?" Argus asked.

"Incredible as it seems, Syria was murdered by the gun in that machine, just as you said. I don't see how we could have missed that. As for the gun we found in Cynthia Lane's dressing room, it belonged to Lucky Gambirini."

"He's one of Dancer's men," Argus said to Ellen. "The one you saw talking to Syria."

"We've had him down to headquarters," went on Grange, "but he doesn't know anything, of course. He's fixed up an alibi, too."

PRIZE WINNING WAR BOND MESSAGE

This advertisement presents the second prize winning editorial in a nationwide contest among high school and college publications, conducted by the Education Section of the War Finance Division in cooperation with the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, as part of the Treasury Department's Schools-at-War program. It was written by Loren Spademan, Highland Park Senior High School, Highland Park, Michigan, for the SPECTATOR and was selected from thousands of editorials which were submitted.

This is your doing -

In the dark off New Britain the davits creak as another landing boat goes over the side. At Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, a surgeon raises his scalpel to begin a delicate brain operation. Somewhere in England an American airman gives a final tug at his parachute straps and climbs aboard for Hamburg and points East.

This is your doing. For one-thirtieth of a second the $75 you put out for a $100 war bond is paying for the war. It's paying the salaries of all the generals and all the admirals and all the buck privates. It's paying the wife of the sergeant in the German prison camp.

Your money is buying all the gasoline and oil, all the bread and milk, the penicillin, oranges, ammunition, hot coffee, the lima beans, peanuts, shoe leather, and elbow grease used by our army in all the 40 odd countries where it is stationed.

You're paying Sinebaldo Lelli* out at Chrysler's, Bob Mestach* over at Excello, the janitor at Willow Run, and Dean George Altenburg, who has left the halls of our Junior College to train fliers out Mount Clemens way.

For one-thirtieth of a second the war is your responsibility. It rests entirely on your shoulders. Snap your fingers and think of all the things going on all over the world while sound is in your ears.

It's an extremely short time, to be sure, but it's the thirtieths of seconds and hundredths of seconds that are turning Berlin under and chasing the Japs from New Britain.

Browns Lead Yanks By A Whisker In American League Race

DETROIT IS STILL RIGHT ON HEELS OF TWO LEADERS

League Race Plenty Tight As Cardinals Step Out In National

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the baseball season ended today the St. Louis Browns would win their first pennant by .0006 of a percentage point over the New York Yankees.

Detroit continued to scorch the heels of the front runners in the Harbridge loop with its seventh straight yesterday, while Mel Ott's surprising Giants ripped along the same win path in the National league to No. 7 at the expense of Pittsburgh. The Tigers are only a game and a half behind the Browns, and the Giants have sprinted from the shadows of the cellar to within two games of third place since last Sunday.

Ott was the big individual story for the second time this week as the Giant pilot banged out home runs Nos. 11 and 12 in a 6-4 nod over the Pirates. Master Melvin Ott hit eight in the last 10 games.

The St. Louis Cardinals pulled out in front by four and a half lengths as Mort Cooper came up with another brilliant eight-hit effort in trimming the Phillies, 9-3. The majors broke out with a rash of five night games, attracting 70,339 fans, with a Philadelphia turnout of 20,339 to see the Cards the largest and the average over 14,000.

Jim Tobin grabbed his third shutout on a three-hit performance against Cincinnati and drove home two of the Boston runs in the 4-0 edge.

Chicago ended its six-game losing streak behind Claude Passeau but Leo Durocher put on his biggest storm act of the year before the Dodgers bowed, 2-1. Lippy Leo was ejected from the game after Umpire Jockey Conlan disallowed a Brooklyn run by Bob Bragan because Goopie Rosen had been caught going into third for the third out before the run crossed the plate.

It took five percentage points to separate the Browns from the Yankees after both had won night games but St. Louis had the edge by a mathematical whisker, .5681 to .5675.

Bob Mueriel blanked the Athletics, 3-0, as his mates won on four safe blows. Hank Borowy stopped the New York slump with an eight-hit, 5-1 performance against Cleveland.

Thurman Tucker upped his average to .415 with three singles in Chicago's 5-2 edge over Washington, helping Thornton Lee finally make the victory grade after six defeats.

Detroit's seventh straight triumph was a 4-1 nod over Boston on first-inning homers by Rudy York and Pinky Higgins.

DEFENSIVE DEMON - By Jack Sords

Dodger Fans Have More Fun Than Anybody

Their Spirit Resembles The Old High School Type - Good and Loud

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

BROOKLYN—No wonder the citizens of this town are daffy over their "Beloved Bums". You've never enjoyed a ball game until you attend one at Ebbets field. There's something about it that makes it tops in sports experiences.

This corner ain't in the habit of telling youse guys and gals where to get your sport thrills. But we'd be guilty of neglect of duty if we didn't point out what you're missing if you've never visited the home of the Dodgers.

The reason for this sudden "discovery" of Brooklyn was a recent night game, the first one around these parts since those so and sos put out the lights at Pearl Harbor.

You can get a kick out of any ball game in Dodgerville. But when you have the Giants playing there, brother, and under the maddas, too, it's entertainment and excitement such as you've never known before.

Remember when your high school played its most hated rival and the kick you got out of the proceedings? Remember how you cheered and yelled and the swell feeling it gave you inside?

Well, Brooklynites have an enthusiasm and language all their own. And you can't mingle with them, or enjoy an exhibition by the "Bums" without inhaling some of the "Dodgermania". Once you get it, you're a Dodger fan for life.

That's why a fugitive from Flatbush will always greet a fellow American anywhere in the world with the same remark:

"How're the Dodgers doing?"

Now that a ball game in Brooklyn is a sports must for all "Clubhouse" readers, there's a little warning we should add—if Brooklyn wins the game, for heaven's sake, remain in your seats until all the regulars have left the park.

If you don't, you're liable to get killed, for dem Bums' rosters go slamming out of the park bell bent for election when they win.

Poor Johnny Rucker of the Giants almost caused this agent to be trampled under the mob when he dropped that easy fly the other night.

Unsuspecting that Johnny would do such a thing, we had left our seat and started for the exit. When the ball fell in center field and the winning run came across the plate, Dodger fans almost felled us with their enthusiasm.

"They came tearing down the ramp slapping every back they could reach and shouting:

"Can you 'agine dat bum dropping dat fly? Why, me little brudder could catch it wit one hand!"

And the noise inside the park wasn't anything to the bedlam outside.

Yowsuh, they really enjoy a ball game in Brooklyn.

BELMONT STAKES PENSIVE'S NEXT RACING ATTEMPT

Calumet Horse Will Have Try at Ranks of Illustrious at Long Island

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, June 3.—Pensive, Warren Wright's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, today can join the illustrious company of Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Omaha, War Admiral, Whirlaway and Count Fleet by winning the $50,000 Belmont stakes and thus become the seventh horse in American turf history to snare racing's triple crown.

More than 40,000 were expected at the spacious Long Island track to watch Pensive again match strides with the Preakness runner-up, George D. Widener's Platter, and six other three-year-olds in a small but select field. Another $3,000,000-betting day virtually was a certainty.

Pensive, pronounced in tip-top shape by Trainer Ben Jones, was expected to go postwards an even money favorite with the Widener entry of Platter and Who Goes There, recent surprise winner of the Withers mile. A close second choice in the gruelling mile and one-half route.

Both the Widener colts were reported by Trainer Bert Mulholland to have improved since their last race. Mulholland expressed the opinion that mile and a half distance suited Platter to a "T." The Widener colt finished second by half a length to Pensive in mile and three-sixteenths Preakness when the Calumet three-year-old duplicated his Kentucky Derby stretch run.

Rated as outsiders were the five other entries, Crispin Oglebay's Boy Knight; Mrs. Donald H. Peters' Bull Dandy; Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Free Lance; Royce G. Martin's Kaytee; and William Ziegler, Jr.'s Bounding Home.

Yank Scouts Score Again!

Pick Up High School Star For Service With Champs After War

By FRANK ECK,
AP Features Sports Writer.

NEW YORK—After the war has been won look for another Richmond Hill High school pitcher to make organized baseball headlines. He is six-foot George Worgul, bespectacled 17-year-old who has been signed by the Yankees.

Worgul is a solid 175-pounder but differs from most schoolboy sensations in that he doesn't feature a speedball. His forte is control and change of pace and he puts the ball where he wants to almost every time.

Opener a No-Hitter
Last season he won six games and lost one in hurling Richmond Hill to its first county championship in 20 years. This spring he opened

Baseball Slated Here Sunday for Salem Team

Hardball, a novelty in Salem for the past several years, will be on the ticket at Centennial park at 3 p. m. tomorrow afternoon as a Salem aggregation tackles the tough Youngstown Manufacturers' team.

The Youngstown outfit boasts some of the top semi-pro players in the Mahoning valley. All members of the Salem team are asked to report to the field at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

He followed this with two 4-0 two-hitters, a 3-1 three-hitter and a 4-2 three-hitter. In his first five games this year he walked but four men in 35 innings and averaged eight strikeouts a game.

Signed For Norfolk
Worgul will not be 18 until next January 9. Yankee Scout Paul Krichel signed him for the Norfolk Tars of the Piedmont league but when he reaches draft age he may go into the service with his three brothers, all of whom starred in basketball at Richmond Hill.

The Dodgers, Giants, Cubs and Browns were after him but he remembered how well other former Richmond Hill athletes fared with the Yankee family and he accepted a $500 bonus from the world champions.

Modest Lad
His coach, Marcus Byers, former Wisconsin U. athlete, says he's a modest lad just like Phil Rizzuto

B Games Will Be Played Later, Senior Loop Game Cancelled

Three softball games—two Class B and one Class A—were rained out at Centennial park yesterday.

Joe Kelley, league manager, said today the Class A contest between Demings and the News will be cancelled this round so that play in the second round can get underway Tuesday.

The B frays will be played off at a later date if they prove to be deciding factors in the first round for that loop.

Armstrong Drops Bout Against Willie Joyce

CHICAGO, June 3.—Henry Armstrong, boxing's former triple titleholder, stepped on a broken rung on his return climb up the fistic to the game's pot of gold last night. Willie Joyce, the 26-year-old Negro who broke even in two previous encounters with the former king of three boxing divisions, upset the fistic dove book and won the rubber match by a unanimous decision in a 10-round, fiercely fought bout at the stadium.

Curt Davis, veteran Dodger right hander, won 138 games in his first 10 years in the majors.

SPORT CHATTER

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, June 3.—If Pensive wins the Belmont and the "triple crown" today, he will be the second Belmont winner whose daddy won the English Derby, after which the American race is patterned. The first was Whirlaway. Instead of the usual "court of honor" of comely co-eds, Marquette U. will provide a court of honor of Navy V-12 trainees for the victory ceremonies at next Saturday's N. C. A. A. track meet. Fourteen men who have seen action with the fleet will do the honors.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Hub McQuillan, Texas Christian U. basketball coach who has been invited to show his wares in Madison Square Garden next December, doesn't have a single varsity player. But he hopes to uncover some talent in a spring practice session. Because of the Bakers' strike in Detroit, the Tigers had to import frankfurter rolls from Cincinnati to feed the hungry throng at their Memorial day doubleheader. Jesse Sweetser, now public relations director for a big airplane company, still plays golf, but his pals claim you now "have to be a senator or better" to play with him. Joe Just, the Reds' Rookie catcher, devotes his spare time to studying ancient history. By the end of the season he expects to get back to the last time the Reds won a pennant.

A ROOKIE A DAY

Clearance Sale: Hal Gregg, Dodgers, and Bill Voiselle, Giants, tried and found wanting last year. They're a couple of the National league's most effective flingers so far this season: Chuck Rosteller, Tigers. He'll be 39 next September and had a big league trial in 1928 but he came back from semi-pro to make good this season.

SERVICE DEPT.

Bill Schatzler, the "unknown" who zoomed to gridiron stardom with the Iowa Seahawks last fall, has been reported missing in action in the South Pacific. He had been a navy bomber in the combat zone only 30 days.

Former Grid Mentor. Now In Navy. Sees Better Football Coming

FARRAGUT, Idaho—Mr. Flaherty Navy food and the pine-incensed air of Idaho are putting muscle on young recruits during their two-month stay at Farragut Naval training center.

Flaherty is the same red-headed, amiable person who coached the Washington Redskins to national professional football league championships back in pre-war years, only now it is Lt. Ray Flaherty.

"I have found out we were not very fit as a nation when Japan pulled its sneaker play at Pearl Harbor," Ray says.

"But the younger boys round quickly into shape. The average physical improvement of recruits is slightly more than 25 per cent."</

Thus iron claws were closing in on whatever German units were attempting to fight a rearguard action in the 13-mile sector between Colle Ferro and Ferentino, looping south of the Sacco river.

From this bag the Nazis had four unsurfaced country roads extending northward, along which they could attempt to escape, but close pursuit from three sides was certain to cost them heavy casualties as well as the loss of all but their most highly mobile vehicles.

Americans exploiting their breakthrough into the German defenses hinged on the Alban hills captured 2,000-foot Monte Castellaccio, six and a half miles west of Valmontone and the same distance north of Velletri.

The enemy lost a thousand men in prisoners alone in the past 24 hours in repeated counter-attacks, vainly attempting to halt the Americans from widening the gap in their frontal defenses and advancing in the strongly-held Lanuvio area.

This brought the total prisoners taken by the Fifth army alone in the current offensive to more than 14,000.

The Fifth and Eighth armies together have taken over 20,000 prisoners.

It was officially reported that the whole Campoleone area near Lanuvio was "littered with enemy tanks and vehicles" and that German losses were mounting steadily as Allied artillery smashed desperate enemy attempts to form up for fresh counter-attacks.

Bricker Supporters See Indiana Victory

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, June 3.—Supporters of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination today hailed as a "sweeping victory" the refusal of the Indiana state G. O. P. convention to instruct Hoosier delegates to the national convention to vote for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

J. Frank McDermott, Attica, Ind., publisher and president of the Bricker-for-President club in Indiana, who described the action yesterday as a Bricker victory, said:

"For weeks Dewey adherents have been claiming the delegates of the Indiana delegation would be instructed for Dewey. When the test came, however, it was evident the delegates were not in the frame of mind to be 'wrapped up and delivered' to a man who has not even admitted publicly that he is a candidate."

"I feel confident that most of the Indiana delegates will be for Governor Bricker, the only candidate who has had the forthrightness and courage to tell the American people where he stands on every issue."

McDermott described the Indiana action as "a forerunner of a sweep for Bricker throughout the nation."

U. S. ESTABLISHES

evoked this first communique from ECUSSA (Eastern Command, U. S. Strategic Air Force):

"A large force of strategic bombers and fighters today attacked Rumanian targets selected by our Russian ally and then continued to Russian bases."

Lose Only One Bomber
"Enemy opposition was slight. One bomber was lost and one fighter is still outstanding."

"The Red air force cooperated by attacking enemy airdromes on the route of the Allied strategic force and providing area fighter support."

(Late last night the Budapest radio went off the air, a possibility that the second base of the shuttle operation might be under way.)

The American fliers were greeted by beaming Russian and American ground crews as well as an official welcoming group which included U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, his daughter, Kathleen, and Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, head of the American military mission to Russia.

In an enthusiastic celebration, the American legion of merit, which the fliers had brought, was presented to Soviet Lt. Gen. Alexander R. Permiov, in charge of Russian facilities for the Americans.

"It was a brief but happy celebration before servicing the aircraft with fuel and ammunition for another call on the Axis enroute to their home bases in England, Italy and America," said Deane.

"The operations carried out today mark the first large-scale physical cooperation of the air forces of Britain, Russia and America."

Deane explained that without British aid the American planes could not take off from their original bases.

Russians Hail Event
One Russian observer hailed the event as "certainly the greatest accomplishment in Soviet cooperation."

(The Moscow radio broadcast an official announcement that "a considerable force of American bombers and fighters dealt a blow against enemy objectives in Rumania," adding that "a part" of these planes landed on bases in Soviet territory.)

The American airmen, unable to speak Russian, heartily greeted the Russians as "Ivan." The Soviet mechanics replied appropriately. They had worked for months with American ground crews to get the bases ready.

While the idea of the west-east shuttle bombing was said to have originated with Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the United States Army Air Forces, the project was first decided on at U. S. Secretary of State Hull's Moscow conferences last fall, and got under way last February after it had been discussed at the Teheran conferences of President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The Truman committee was asked today to broaden its probe of war production contracts by demanding that the army and navy produce the names of all companies whose agreements with the military forces may be terminated or cut-back in the next six months.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.), member of the Truman group, made the request following the Navy's cancellation of fighter plane contracts with the Brewster Aeronautical Corp.

G. I. TAX LOOPHOLE
From Sen. George (D-Ga.), chairman of the powerful senate finance committee, came a suggestion that might mean another break for men and women in uniform. George thinks they should be allowed to claim exemption from the stiff night club tax merely by signing their names and service serial numbers on the bills. The problem came up in a measure to cut the cabaret levy from 30 to 20 per cent—and to raise the public debt limit from $210,000,000,000 to $260,000,000,000.

CONVENTION RECESS LOOMS
It looks like a sound guess that Congress will knock off work in a couple of weeks until after the Democratic and Republican national conventions in Chicago. Most of the legislators are scheduled to attend the political convalescences—and the house banking committee has helped their plans along by approving a one-year extension of price control and avoiding a congressional battle over food subsidies.

The committee compromised the issue by ruling the present subsidies on meat, butter and flour may continue, but banned consumer price aids on other food products.

AROUND THE TOWN
Both senate and house are in recess until Monday. . . . Sen. Weeks of Massachusetts, treasurer of the Republican National committee, said he wants a "reasonable" limitation on presidential campaign expenditures in wartime but doubts that the sum could be held to $2,000,000 as suggested by Sen. Gillette (D-Ia.). Rep. Brooks (D-La.) put into the congressional record figures showing that American army generals have more men under their command than those of any other fighting force $6278 men compared to 5,300 for German generals, 2,528 for British and 2,400 for Japanese.

Child Taken From Home, Attacked By Kidnapers

SEATTLE, Wash., June 3.—Police Capt. William Veeb said today Florence Marks, five-year-old daughter of a Navy doctor, has been kidnaped, possibly raped and left huddled in a blanket on a doorstep 15 blocks from her home.

Veeb said the girl's parents, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Jacob Marks, reported at 2:46 a. m. that Florence was missing from her bedroom and a ladder had been found leading into a second story window of the Marks house.

Forty-five minutes later, Veeb said, Mrs. Ethel Smart telephoned police that the girl, clinging to a blanket, had rung her doorbell.

The police captain quoted Dr. R. P. Ballard, interne at the hospital where the child was taken, as saying she was "the victim of a possible criminal attack."

Gas Coupon Theft Probe Is Widened

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, June 3.—Police Office of Price Administration investigators today sought distributors of thousands of gasoline coupons which they said were obtained illegally from Cleveland's largest ration board.

Detective Inspector Frank W. Story and U. S. District Attorney Don Miller reported they had "obtained statements" from C. R. Allen, former Cleveland Office of Defense Transportation district manager, and Robert A. Dissauer, former chief clerk of ration board No. 6, both of whom pleaded innocent in federal court to grand jury indictments of stealing 12,050 "T" ration coupons representing 60,250 gallons of gasoline.

Allen was charged with purloining 7,650 "T" coupons, each good for five gallons of gasoline, in three court cases which accused him of stealing 500 coupons between Feb. 9 and 14, another 2,000 Feb. 21 and 4,550 March 28. Dissauer is charged with purloining 5,000 coupons April 5.

Anthony R. Fioretti, OPA regional enforcement attorney, explained approximately 10,000 of the missing coupons had turned up in the Cleveland area. He indicated investigators were checking leads in the Youngstown, Warren, Canton and Ashland areas.

Allen was released under $150,000 bond and Dissauer under $500,000 bond.

In Washington, Rep. Michael Bughan, Cleveland Democrat, introduced congressional legislation to direct the Federal Bureau of Investigation to participate in the rationing probe.

WHY THIS BANK IS GROWING

Yes, we are proud of our mounting figures of total deposits and resources, and in the number of people who do business with us.

But we like to feel that we have also grown in the quality of our service as well as in our capacity to serve. . . in the will to do as well as in the strength to do it. . . in the breadth of our facilities as well as in the size of our assets.
